Nature Ritual

"The deep green forests, clear blue lakes, the mysterious tranquility of nature and the occasional howling of wolves are our sources of inspiration"

Hukka Design

2.8 billion years ago, at the beginning of the earth's history, when life on earth did not even exist, the earth's crust began to change. In the northeastern part of Finland, near the Russian border, continental plates collided and mountains up to 9,000 meters high rose, creating an enormous air pocket. The soapstone was created when a lump of molten rock entered the air pocket and caused extreme compression. The soapstone was buried in the earth for many years after that, but 4 ice ages covered the earth and scraped away the uplift, revealing the Karelian Soapstone near the surface. This is how the natural world endowed soapstone with mystical powers to withstand the harsh environment of Northern Europe. Using this mysterious stone, the Lapidem Nature Ritual is a dynamic natural experience inspired by the beauty of Finnish landscapes.
